Developing the Philippine Health Workforce for Improved Primary Health Care with a focus on family planning and tuberculosis services through USAID’s Human Resources for Health 2030 Activity

Performance management and development strengthened

Models for Learning and Development Information System designed

Data from HRH information system utilized

Post-training evaluation tools produced for e-Learning

Education sector for health professionals analyzed

Competency assessment package for health workers delivered

Human Resource Information System assessed

Competency-based trainings developed to e-Learning modules

National Health Workforce Accounts implementation roadmap finalized

Responsive Organizational Structure and Staffing Levels

Health Labor Market dynamics analyzed

Sustainable, HRH retention programs reviewed

Workload Indicators for Staffing Needs institutionalization supported

Strategic governance integrated

Universal Health Care
Available, acceptable, accessible, high-quality health workforce needed to improve health outcomes

Fit-for-purpose, fit-to-practice HRH

Positive Patient Experience

WORkFORCE PLANNING

Workforce planning and distribution improved

LABOR MARKET DISTRIBUTION

LABOR MARKET EMPLOYMENT

EDUCATION/HEALTH SECTOR

IN-SERVICE TRAINING

HEALTH LABOR MARKET

The U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) through the Human Resources for Health in 2030 (HRH2030) program brings a state-of-the-art approach for advancing a competent and responsive health workforce and driving greater impact to meet the health needs of all Filipinos. Learn more: https://hrh2030program.org/
The U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) through the Human Resources for Health in 2030 (HRH2030) program brings a state-of-the-art approach for advancing a competent and responsive health workforce and driving greater impact to meet the health needs of all Filipinos. Learn more: https://hrh2030program.org/